No Action Is Taken on Doubling Meter Rates in Palmer Square Area

Borough Council at its June 27 meeting had been expected to introduce an ordinance that would raise the 75 cent hourly meter rate to $1.50 in Palmer Square and to a dollar in the rest of the Central Business District. But this never happened.

After a discussion that lasted more than an hour-and-a-half, Council decided to go back to the drawing board and ask Borough Engineer Carl Peters to come up with a variety of possible parking changes, along with an estimate of the revenue that would be generated by these changes.

In addition, it would not have been possible that night to introduce an ordinance setting the higher meter rates because the draft ordinance was incomplete, and because earlier ordinances had not been codified, making it hard to prepare revisions.

The meter rate increase in the Central Business District had been offered as a way for the Borough to gain an additional $200,000 in revenue each year. This amount of money is needed to replenish surplus and avoid a tax increase higher than this year's 2 cent rise.

A supporter of the meter rate hike, Councilman Roger Martindell said that in order to generate an additional $200,000 in revenue, the average Borough taxpayer would have to pay $70 more each year.

New Library Will Cost $17.5 Million

The new Princeton Public Library, now being designed by The Hillier Group, will cost a total of $17.5 million. That amount is almost $6 million more than the original $12 million estimate.

"We are designing a building to meet the needs of the community," commented Library Board President Harry Levine, at a joint meeting with Borough Council and Township Committee members on Thursday, June 29. "We don't yet know exactly how we will pay for it."

Architects for The Hillier Group presented plans for a spacious (54,525 square feet, plus penthouse), light-filled library to Township and Borough officials last week. Luis Vildostegui noted that Hillier is designing the three-story building — to be located at the corner of Witherspoon Street and Wiggins Lane — from the "inside out."

The entrance to the new library will be on Witherspoon Street; and patrons will be able to look "up in and up into the facility, seeing a backbone of books," according to architect Joe Rizzo. There will also be large bay windows facing Wiggins Lane.

The architects did not elaborate on exterior details, which have yet to be resolved, as do parking issues, re-location of library operations during construction, and — most important — financing.

[In 1994, the architectural firm of Kieran, Timberlake & Harris, Philadelphia, conducted an expansion feasibility study for the library, financed jointly by the Township and the Borough, as co-owners.

The consultants proposed construction of a two-story addition to the south of the library, along Witherspoon Street, raised on columns to allow for parking at ground level. They also recommended that the library's atrium area be filled in and that a small third story be added on top of the present structure. The cost for a total of 57,000 square feet was set at $12 million.

At that time, the Township and Borough each agreed to supply $3 million of the cost, with the remaining $6 million to be raised by the library board. These amounts were used, pending further study, until Hillier was engaged.]

Municipal officials seemed taken aback at the increased construction cost last week, although Mr. Levine pointed out that, despite a change in library design, most of the hike can be attributed to inflation during the last six years.

"Anything more than $12 million is not in the debt management plan of the Borough," commented Borough Mayor Marvin Reed.

Mr. Levine assured municipal officials that the library board could raise the additional monies, and that it would not ask for combined municipal contributions of more than $6 million.

"Before we make a legal commit-

Princeton Medical Group Physician H. Rothberg Retires After 40 Years

Harvey Rothberg, 71, retired from active practice as an internist and oncologist with the Princeton Medical Group last Friday — after 40 years.

Since announcing his retirement by letter to patients in April, Dr. Rothberg has been inundated with notes and communications from them. Comments range from the simple "You cannot retire!" to the more eloquent, "I have admired your keen scientific mind, your dogged determination, and, more importantly, your insistence to treat each patient as a unique individual."

Reaction from the medical community has been just as intense. "He is one of the greatest physicians I've ever had the privilege of working with," commented Ben Wright, Dr. Rothberg's partner for many years.

Dr. Wright was one of nine doctors who welcomed Dr. Rothberg to the Princeton Medical Group when he joined it in 1960. [Twenty-one doctors are now part of the group practice, which has offices at the ment, we must make sure library fundraising will be successful," Borough Councilman David Goldfarb insisted.

Project Will Fly

Mr. Levine said he was confident the "project will fly." He said the library board has already made a substantial six-figure contribution to fundraising.

Borough Council member Roger Martindell pointed out that a number of community organizations are involved in major fundraising campaigns, including the Arts Council and McCarter Theatre. "One could argue that there is a limited private pool of funds," he said. "Is a $17 million library something the community can afford?"

"If the community's needs exceed public ability to pay, private funding may not be capable of supporting everything," Mr. Levine conceded. "There are other funding sources, such as the state. I am confident," he continued, "that the community places a high priority on a library of this dimension. If our advisers had been worried, they would have told us we would be in trouble."

"The ultimate success of fundraising centers on the level of commitment of the governing bodies," commented Mayor Reed. "We're going to need authorization for more than $17 million in construction funds."

No construction contracts can be let without municipal authorization to spend the entire $17 million, according to municipal officials. "The two municipalities will have to work with fundraisers," Township Administrator James Pascale pointed out.

To get the project started, each municipality will have to pass a bond ordinance for its share of the total construction cost. Contributions that come in through fundraising will be deducted from the total amount. Because the bills will not all come in at once, short-term bonds can be approved as the work progresses.

"It is very unlikely that we would have to go to the bond market for the full amount," Township Financial Officer John Clawson told TOWN TOPICS. "As we go along, we will know the extent to which we must float bonds."

16-Month Project
The architects have estimated that construction will take about 16 months, and major fundraising campaigns, have projected a start date of March 2001.

During those 16 months, of course, library operations will have to be located off-site. The possibility of relocating to the Valley Road Building, which is owned by the Princeton Regional Schools, is being discussed.

Township municipal offices are now located in the building, along with the school district's administrative offices. Once the Township vacates its 24,000 square feet, however — anticipated for early next year — the library could move into the space temporarily.

There are, however, no sprinklers in the Valley Road Building. If the library is required to install sprinklers, that will add $200,000 to the cost of the project.

Parking at Valley Road is also limited. Provided the school district and the Township can find an alternate space for the 15 school buses that now park behind the Valley Road Building, relocation would be feasible, Mr. Levine said.

The issue of downtown library parking will be discussed in detail at another joint meeting between the two municipalities and the library board, Mr. Levine said. At that meeting, scheduled for 7:30, on July 31, in Borough Hall, other unresolved issues will also be clarified, he promised.

OPEN MOUTH WONDER: Aaron, Josh, Rebecca and Page Berger are in awe at the Spirit of Princeton fireworks display held on the Princeton University fields on Washington Road.

Education Committee Urges Increase In Minority Staff; Focus on Early Ed

Members of the Princeton Regional Schools minority education committee have long tried to put pressure on district officials to recruit teachers who are members of minority groups. At a meeting of the committee on June 21, board member Myra Williams suggested that a goal of 25 percent minority teachers would not be inappropriate.

"It should be possible to work with the director of personnel to target black colleges with high quality education programs," she insisted.

Other members of the group pointed out that not only teachers, but also administrators, should be members of minority groups.

Assistant Superintendent Jeffrey Graber said that once a human resources director is hired, that person could meet with the committee. "You can express in person, the importance of recruiting minorities," he said.

The recommendation was one of several goals enunciated during a wide-ranging discussion of committee objectives for the coming year.

The goals will be reported to the board of education at its next meeting, according to Committee Chair Walter Frank. "I think the recommendation of 25 percent was a way of putting an exclamation point to the recruitment goal," he added. "Myra's statement was an expression of a minority education committee concern that has been going on for years."

"I think it was well received because it is so specific," Mr. Frank continued. "We have been without a personnel director for some time, and it has been hard to make much progress in terms of minority hiring. This suggestion also focuses on a strategy for recruitment."

The PRS district also needs to develop strong policies on intolerance, suggested Caroline Mitchell, a committee co-chair. She said that policies on intolerance are just as effective — as policies on sexual harassment.

Mr. Frank, who invited committee members to talk about their objectives, said he was struck by committee members' emphasis upon the importance of pre-kindergarten and early childhood education.

Several members stressed the importance of teaching children to read at an early age. Former board member Ricardo Bruce, in particular, urged that the district attack discrepancies in the kinds of pre-kindergarten and kindergarten education available to various groups of Princeton children.

"We should have a kind of SWAT team staff for early education," he said. "Invest money in the front end of education," he urged. "Then we won't have so many meetings like this. If a child got to first grade without being able

Plans Move Ahead For Bakery/Cafe On Nassau Street

Panera Bread has successfully jumped what was probably its highest hurdle when it was granted two variances by the Borough Zoning Board in late June. With these in hand, the cafe and bakery chain is looking hopefully at a November 1 opening in the Nassau Street stores that formerly housed Verdge Technologies Diner and Great Impressions. The two storefronts will be combined into one 4,600 square-foot bakery/cafe.

The first variance gave Panera the right to use 700 feet in the rear of the street level as a portion of its headquarters. Borough zoning in most instances mandates that street-level retail or restaurant use not be given up to offices, banks and other similar uses. The second, a parking variance, requires that five off-site parking spaces be provided.

walls in the interior are expected to remain. The balance of the Fenwick office will be housed in the basement.

Panera will have a 125-seat dining area, including tables, chairs, couches, and armchairs. There will be a meeting room which, except at lunch, will be available for groups to use.

An on-site bakery will offer a variety of breads, including sourdough, rye, pumpernickel, French, and focaccia, as well as croissants, Danish, and other pastries.

The menu includes soup, salads, sandwiches, coffees, and specialty drinks, with most salads and sandwiches costing about $5.

Through Operation Dough-Nation, Panera donates its leftovers to charity every day; matches donations from customers made at the cafe to a local charity; and enables fund-raising groups to sell special coupons for its products and keep half the proceeds.

Mr. Nawn said the Nassau Street Panera will open at 6:30 a.m. seven days a week. The earliest it will close will be 8 p.m. on Sundays, and it will be open as late as warranted, up to 10 or 11 p.m., in the latter part of the week.

Panera will bring together what had earlier been torn asunder. For years, Allen's, a children's store, was located at 134-136 Nassau Street. In the early '90s, a portion of the street level space was leased to Great Impressions. In 1996, the Allen's store premises were leased to Totally Wired, a cybercafe. In 1997, Totally Wired assigned its lease to Verdge Technologies Diner, another restaurant. This closed in early 1998. Since then, the Verdge space has been empty. Great Impressions only recently closed.

Panera Bread has approximately 170 cafes in the United States, primarily in the Midwest and Southeast.

—Myra K. Bearse

One of the spaces will be in the driveway of the Hodge Road home of Jim Nawn, an executive of The Fenwick Group. This group is a New Jersey franchise of Panera, Inc. and was formed to develop and manage the franchise rights of an anticipated 40 Panera Bread bakery/cafes in New Jersey. So far, four have opened, in West Orange, Paramus, Westfield, and Wayne. The company is in the final stages of lease negotiations for a site in West Windsor's Nassau Park, next to Target.

Mr. Nawn anticipates that the Borough's Historic Preservation Review Committee will review his plans on July 12. He said he expects the plans will satisfy the concerns of the group "and with their stamp of approval we can move ahead to the building/permitting stage."

Combining Storefronts

The storefronts of Verdge and Great Impressions, now startlingly dissimilar, will be merged into one, in a design that will be consistent with the Victorian nature of the building. This will include raised wood panels and extensive glass. The brick

Anti-smoking Group Seeks Involvement in Litigation

New Jersey Breathes, a coalition of some 40 anti-smoking organizations, filed a motion in state Superior Court on June 28 seeking to participate as an amicus curiae (friend of the court) on behalf of the Princeton Regional Health Commission in defense of a legal challenge to the commission's ban on smoking.

The ban is being challenged by the National Smokers Alliance and three Princeton restaurants, The Annex, Lahiere's, and The Ivy Inn. The Health Commission on June 23 filed a motion to have the National Smokers Alliance removed from the lawsuit, a motion which was countered last week in a plaintiffs' brief defending participation of the Alliance.

The Health Commission has agreed to place the smoking ban on hold until there is a judicial ruling. A July 20 hearing is set with Superior Court Judge Linda Feinberg, but she is not expected to rule at that time on the plaintiffs' request for permanent injunctive relief.

Attorney Robert J. Conroy, representing New Jersey Breathes, said the coalition wants to bring to the court's attention some things that might not otherwise come before it. Although New Jersey Breathes had earlier pledged financial support to the Health Commission if the ban were challenged, participating as an amicus curiae does not appear to be considered providing financial support.

New Jersey Breathes includes such groups as the Medical Society of New Jersey, The American Lung Association, the American Cancer Society, and the American Heart Association. It has been involved in the movement to ban cigarette vending machines and efforts to limit second-hand smoke.

Mr. Conroy said Judge Feinberg will decide on or before July 7 whether New Jersey Breathes will be allowed in as an amicus curiae.

On June 1, the Princeton Regional Health Commission unanimously approved an ordinance prohibiting smoking in all enclosed public places; all restaurants, bars, cabarets, and taverns; and all workplaces. Exceptions were made only for private homes, retail tobacco stores, and rooms in lodgings that were equipped with separate ventilation systems. The lawsuit challenging the ordinance was filed one week later.

Huang was issued a summons for careless driving. Walter was transported to the Medical Center of Princeton, complaining of facial pain. Police said that the driver of the third vehicle may not have felt the impact of Walter's car.

Diving Accident Sends Girl to Trauma Center

A 13-year-old female Princeton Township resident was practicing dives with the Princeton Dive Team at the Community Park Pool on June 23, when she dove off the one-meter board and struck her head. She swam to the edge of the pool and was treated by lifeguards for a head laceration.

She was unresponsive but breathing when the Princeton First Aid Squad arrived on the scene, along with Mercer County paramedics. She was transported to Robert Wood Johnson Trauma Center in New Brunswick, where she was treated and released.

Arts Council Café Improv Wins National Award

Café Improv, the monthly cabaret at the Arts Council, has been awarded a prize in the National Hometown Video Festival. This prize is public access television's counterpart to the Emmy Award.

Café Improv, a long-running music and poetry venue (simulcast on Princeton's public access cable TV station), came in first place in the "Performing Arts" category.

The winning segment was part of the July 1999 Café Improv, featuring singer/songwriter/surrealist painter Dan Zimmerman. In awarding the prize, the judges made particular mention of the professional quality of the performance and the artistic vision that pervades the broadcasts of Café Improv.

For information about Café Improv, call Thomas Florek, 734-5334 or tflorek@ets.org; or Anne Reeves, 924-8777.

TRENTON ROUNDUP

Deer Control Legislation

Governor Christine Whitman signed deer-management legislation on Friday, June 30, opening the way for the Township to conduct a controlled hunt.

The legislation permits municipalities, airport owners, and agriculture boards statewide to waive normal hunting regulations in areas where the deer population is out of control — as long as the state Division of Fish and Wildlife grants permission.

The Township, and especially Mayor Marchand, has been in the forefront of lobbying efforts for the legislation. The Township can only sustain about 300 deer overall — or 20 per square mile — without damage to the ecology. In recent years, the size of the herd has increased to a total of more than 1,300, wreaking havoc with local vegetation and posing an extreme hazard to motorists.

Opponents of the legislation, including the Mercer County Deer Alliance, argue that, rather than reducing the total deer herd, a hunt would cause it to replenish at a more rapid rate. They argue that other options are available. These include rounding up the deer and transporting them out of state, or employing immunocontraceptive techniques.

At press time, it was unclear what option the Township will choose.

Sprinklers Required

Last week, the Assembly unanimously approved legislation that would require all New Jersey colleges and universities to install sprinkler systems in every dormitory room. Governor Whitman has said she will sign the bill on July 5. It passed the state Senate on June 26.

The bill applies to colleges, universities, boarding schools, military schools, fraternity houses, and sorority houses, and creates a $90 million loan program for the state to help pay for the sprinklers. There is a four-year limit for installing the sprinklers.

Health Coverage

The state Senate last week approved a bill to bring health insurance coverage to 125,000 low-income and working families. The bill, S-1467, passed by a 39-0 vote and now goes to Governor Whitman for her signature. It would provide subsidized health insurance for working New Jersey residents.

Over-time Nursing

A growing shortage of nurses is causing problems for New Jersey hospitals, especially in specialties like critical care. In order to keep units properly staffed, some hospitals have been forcing nurses to work mandatory over-time.

Legislation passed last week would prohibit forced overtime in New Jersey hospitals and nursing homes, except in emergencies. If Governor Whitman signs the bill, as expected, New Jersey would be the first state in the nation to prohibit mandatory over-time.

Carol Chermack, a spokeswoman for the State Nurses Association, explained that the nursing shortage, which she termed "almost a crisis situation," could also pose safety risks for patients if over-time is used as a solution.

"An exhausted nurse working the 15th hour of a double shift involuntarily is not who you want taking care of you," she pointed out.

DOLLS FOR APPALACHIA: Stuart Country Day School student Avery Epstein, left, a Princeton resident, with Stuart Lower School Head Patty Schorr, and dolls collected for children in Appalachia. When Avery served as acting head of the Lower School recently, she chose the day's lunch menu, declared a no-homework day and authorized students to wear pajamas instead of uniforms. She also asked each girl to make a doll for less fortunate children. The dolls were delivered last month to Appalachia, by 16 upper school students, who went to Tennessee for a home-repair project.

Novelist John Altman To Sign Books at Micawber

John Altman, author of A Gathering of Spies, a World War II espionage thriller, recently published by Putnam, will sign copies of the book on Sunday, July 9, at 3, at Micawber Books, 114 Nassau Street.

Mr. Altman grew up in Princeton, where his parents still live. In 1986, he attended the Governor's School, for creative writing; and in 1988, he entered Harvard College, where he designed his own major, "Development and Construction of the Novel." The major required him to write one novel per year for his three upperclassman years.

Upon graduation, he returned to Princeton with the novels — all three of which he lost in a house fire, which he started accidentally in his parents' home with a cigarette. He now lives in New York City where he is a freelance writer and musician.

A Gathering of Spies, Mr. Altman's first published novel, pits a female Nazi agent carrying secrets from Los Alamos against a British M15 agent, bearing his own secrets. The book has been praised by a number of critics, including best-selling suspense novelist Stephen Coonts, who called it "A sizzling zinger of a classic spy story."

Chilled Honeydew Soup with Mint & Lime

Very easy & delicious, but make sure your honeydew shows signs of being perfectly ripe: a creamy color on the outside and a strong fragrance before it's cut.

- 1 medium ripe honeydew melon
(4½ lbs), cut into chunks (6-8 cups)
- ¼ cup fresh lime juice
- 2 tbsp. fresh minced mint
- Blueberries for garnish

Place everything, except blueberries in a blender. Purée until smooth. (You may need to do this in several batches.) Transfer to a container with a lid and chill until very cold. Give each serving a few blueberries and another sprinkling of chopped mint for a refreshing treat on a hot summer's day.

Parking Meters

The meter rate increases are based on a user fee concept," he said. "Only people that use our streets would pick up added costs."

"We have to be very careful about the way we approach meter rates," said Councilwoman Wendy Benchley. "We need to make every effort to support downtown merchants and restaurants. This is too big an increase."

She urged Council to meet with merchants to come up with a compromise plan.

In addition to the merchants and restaurateurs who have strenuously rejected the meter rate increases, 2578 people signed a petition against the idea.

As he has on many occasions, Councilman David Goldfarb raised the issue of the meter rate increase. He said this was the kind of mechanism to have in place to deal with issues such as meter rate increases.

Improvement District

An SID functions by placing an additional tax on merchants, with the money then used for the betterment of the improvement district. One of the best known SIDs was established in Manhattan's Times Square, which has undergone an enormous cleaning-up and massive changes.

"Let's draft an [SID] ordinance and tell merchants we will discuss it," urged Mr. Goldfarb. "If we start to move ahead with a garage, we have to have an SID in place."

Mr. Goldfarb also said that a $1.50 meter rate raises a lot of questions, and that "there is something to be said about the shock of a 100 percent increase."

A reminder of the need to generate an additional $200,000 in revenue was offered by Councilman Ryan Stark Lillenthal. "If we lower the rate we should look at extending the hours," he said.

$1.20 and 90 Cents?

Mayor Reed came up with the suggestion of raising the Palmer Square rates to $1.20 and the adjacent areas to 90 cents, but no one picked up on the idea. Mr. Goldfarb, however, said that if every meter were raised 25 cents an hour, the Borough would come close to achieving its revenue goals.

"I can't believe $1.50 parking in Palmer Square is unreasonable," said Mr. Martindell. "This is the premier parking spot in central New Jersey."

There were surprisingly few business owners in the audience, given the high interest in the topic. Logan Fox, co-owner of Micawber Books, was there, and he told Council they had no idea of the anger about meters he and other merchants see on a day-to-day basis. "It does keep people away. On Saturday and Sunday we get outsiders, and we need outsiders," he said.

He said that raising meters every time the Borough has a shortfall is not the thing to do, and asked if Palmer Square would make the first hour free in their garages so people could easily come into town to take care of brief errands. The second hour, he said, could make up for the first.

Mr. Goldfarb was critical of Palmer Square on several counts. First, he said he had spoken to Palmer Square about their garage rates with very little effect. Second, he said that Palmer Square had satisfied its legal requirement with the Planning Board to provide parking, but then set the rates so high that nobody who is a shopper is willing to pay them.

"This is a brute force way of raising revenues," said Leo Arons of The Gilded Lion, who is a member of the Traffic and Transportation Committee. "There are alternatives. Each time there is a shortfall you raise meters. This has to stop sometime. The time is now."

gested it might be appropriate to increase the amount of the $18 fine for meter violation.

"I have the sense we're refusing to decide some basic questions," said Mr. Martindell. "We're pushing it back to staff, and staff will have to make policy decisions."

Mr. Peters will bring his recommendations on an increase in meter rates, and possibly an extension of hours, to the July 18 Council meeting. At last week's meeting, he said he might try to bring an increase to one dollar in certain areas, look at long-term meters, and raise rates at meters that weren't raised in 1998. He also said he believed meters should go to 8 p.m. since there is no movement of cars at night.

PARDON THE MESS

After years of planning, revising, designing, and redesigning, the Whole Earth Center's parking lot is finally being paved!

During construction, our parking spaces will be limited and our lot may be full—particularly during our peak shopping hours. We apologize for any delays this will cause and we will work hard to limit the inconvenience to our customers.

There is also parking on the surrounding side streets.
(Please take careful note of posted restrictions on hours and no parking zones.)

CLUBS

Kingston Garden Club Will Sponsor Tour

The Kingston Garden Club will sponsor a tour of five private gardens in Kingston on Saturday, July 15, from 10 to 2. The rain date is Sunday, July 16.

On the day of the tour, tickets may be purchased at 14 Basin Street, Kingston. General admission will be $10; senior citizen discount tickets will be sold for $7.50; and children will be admitted free. All proceeds from the tour will benefit the Kingston Garden Club and its community beautification and educational outreach projects.

The five gardens that will be open to the public in the self-guided walking or driving tour are primarily the creations of people who do all or most of the work themselves, with limited budgets and limited time.

The Garden Club president's garden, for example, boasts an exuberant display of plants in an informal, natural style. Easy-care perennials and shrubs predominate. This garden features mature specimens of several low-maintenance plants, including many types of ornamental grasses; 35 varieties of daylilies, which should be at their peak at the time of the tour; and a rich selection of hearty perennials. A bountiful vegetable garden is also on the property.

A one-acre garden featuring rock walls, rock borders, designer rocks, field stone, blue stone, river rocks, and glacial till, from Virginia, West Virginia, Pennsylvania, South Carolina, New Jersey and the Rhone Valley in France is on the tour. Shrubs, perennials, and annuals create a unique bird-watching sanctuary amid the rocks.

A 4-year-old cottage garden is another tour highlight. Its informal and semi-structured "garden rooms" provide many comfortable niches on the property.

Gail F. Stern

Historical Society Head Wins Statewide Award

Gail F. Stern, the director of the Historical Society of Princeton, received the New Jersey Association of Museums' John Cotton Dana award at its annual June luncheon meeting at the Steadman Gallery at Rutgers' Camden campus.

Director of the Society since 1993, Ms. Stern has overseen many successful exhibitions and education programs.

The current exhibition, "Old Traditions, New Beginnings," is co-sponsored with The Jewish Center of Princeton and is mounted at both sites — Bainbridge House and The Center's facility at 435 Nassau Street.

Ms. Stern served as museum curator, then museum director, of the Balch Institute for Ethnic Studies in Philadelphia, from 1979 to 1993. She has served on the boards of the American Association of Museums/International Council of Museums, the NJ Association of Museums, and the Mid-Atlantic Association of Museums.

John Cotton Dana, for whom the award is named, was the first director of the Newark Museum, in 1909. He wanted museums to be of practical value to all Newark citizens, and to be "handmaidens of the schools." In its annual presentation of the Dana award, the NJ Association of Museums honors both the recipient and the memory of Dana, a museum pioneer.

The meeting will begin at 11:30, with a reception, followed by the speaker's presentation and a buffet luncheon. The commissioner's remarks will focus on the effect that development and growth have on the quality of life and the environment.

He served for 26 years as an elected official at local, county, and state levels, devoting much of his energy to open space, pine-lands, and farmland preservation, water supply, and solid waste management issues.

At the time of his nomination as commissioner, Mr. Shinn was a state assemblyman. Drug Abuse Counseling and Therapy Offered By Arnold M. Washton, Ph.D.

Taking that first step to get help can be the hardest, points out addiction psychologist Arnold M. Washton. For people struggling with alcohol and substance abuse, just being willing to admit the problem and discuss it is a major step forward. The relationship with the drug is so strong and intense that even though they come in voluntarily, patients are still ambivalent about stopping drug or alcohol use.

IT'S NEW To Us

Dr. Washton, who practices at 256 Bunn Drive as well as in Manhattan, has been treating patients with these addictions for 25 years. He is a licensed psychologist, with a proficiency certification in addiction psychology from the American Psychological Association, College of Professional Psychology. After graduating from New York University with a bachelor's degree, and then with a Ph.D. in psychology from City University of New York, he determined to specialize in addiction psychology.

Contemporary to Classic Designs From Margaret Miller Interiors

Nineteen years in business! Not so many establishments achieve this degree of longevity anymore, and Margaret Miller Interiors can be proud of this accomplishment. "We have so many regular customers and a very big network of referrals; there's a great deal of word-of-mouth," says interior decorator Margaret Miller, who opened Margaret Miller Interiors in 1981 in the Kingston Mall on Route 27.

"Originally, we were a wallpaper store, with vertical and mini blinds and shades," she recalls. "It evolved into design, which is what I always wanted to do."

The focus of Ms. Miller's business is design, but her store also offers a wide variety of items for purchase and extensive room to browse.

Framed Art
Fabrics, accessories, furniture and framed art are all available, covering a big price range from $12 up to the $1000s. Everything from painted birchbark to book ends and brass birdcages to silk flowers is on display, as is a big selection of fabric samples and also frame samples for mirrors.

"We sell a huge amount of framed art," says Ms. Miller. "This evolved out of having a few pieces of art here to accessorize vignettes, and now we have all styles and sizes, including prints and signed and numbered lithographs, in a medium price range. It's like having an art gallery on the side, and it's extremely popular."

Helping her clients achieve the look that reflects their particular taste and personality is Ms. Miller's biggest pleasure, and she works with people of all ages and life-styles. "They are singles, couples, and all income levels," she notes. "These are people who have decided to seek professional help. Having a decorator is probably the best investment you can make. You'll end up not making mistakes."

In many cases, clients are choosing to redo the rooms in their house, rather than moving, she reports, and Ms. Miller helps them find their own look. "I try to develop their own taste. I'll ask many questions to determine a life-style — are there kids, pets, do they cook, have parties, are they formal, informal? A home should be lived in."

Eye For Color
Sometimes, clients are confused or uncertain, and then, quite as popular as before.

Ms. Miller has seen a variety of changes over the years, including the increasing popularity today of home offices. She also notes that "in window treatments, verticals, shades and blinds are more popular as before."

Opera by Weisgall Is Next Offering At Opera Festival
Candide at Austin Lyric Opera.

Opera Festival of New Jersey presents the Hugo Weisgall's Six Characters in Search of an Author on July 7, 12, 16, and 22. Performances will be held at McCarter Theatre Center, Opera Festival's home since 1998. The production will be sung in English with English superlatives projected above the stage.
This thought-provoking piece is essentially an opera within an opera. A wayward family stumbles upon a rehearsal for an opera and requests that the director direct their story. As the opera progresses, we see how this surreal plot unfolds with the "Characters" telling their story and the "Real People" dealing with the plot of it.

Six Characters is Opera Festival's first of two modern operas being presented this season; the other is Princeton resident's Frank Lewin's Burning Bright. Six Characters is based on the play by Pirandello which was named the best play of the 20th century by Time magazine.

Conductor Barbara Day Turner and Stage Director Albert Takazaukas will bring the modern masterpiece to McCarter's stage. "We are very excited to bring this stunning masterpiece to life. The cast is headed by some of the most respected artists in the field with Rosalind Elias and Robert Orth," said General Director Karen Tiller.

The Cast
The cast of the Opera Festival production includes Rosalind Elias (Mother) who returns to the Opera Festival after the 1997 production of Vanessa. Past engagements include La Fille du Regiment, Dialogues des Carmelites, Le Nozze di Figaro, Der Rosenkavalier, and Andrea Chenier at Metropolitan Opera and Hansel and Gretel on PBS which earned her an Emmy Award.

Robert Orth (Father) came to national attention with his acclaimed performances of Harvey Milk at Houston Grand Opera, San Francisco Opera, and New York City Opera. Other past engagements include The Aspern Papers at Washington Opera, Six Characters in Search of an Author at Chicago Opera Theater, and ArtWorks, originally the Princeton Art Association, is both a gallery and a visual arts school. It is supported by the Geraldine R. Dodge Foundation, the Mary Owen Borden Foundation, the NJ Department of Community Affairs, and the Mercer County Cultural & Heritage Commission.

An exhibition of work by three artists who show at the Williams Gallery — Tanya Kohn, Yoshikatsu Tamekane, and Joerg Schmeisser — will be at the ITXC Corporation, 600 College Road East, through September.

Entitled "Space, Time, and Travel — A Global Itinerary," the exhibition underlines the international aspect of ITXC's involvement in communications. The three artists are from Mexico, Japan, and Australia.

A recurring theme in Ms. Kohn's paintings is nature: earth, sea and sky. Using a variety of media and techniques, Ms. Kohn says, "Real, authentic artistic expression is, above all, introspection. It is an encounter with one's self. It is an intent to communicate something profound and yet personal."

Born in Prague, Czechoslovakia, Ms. Kohn later emigrated to Ecuador. She was invited by the International Organization for Cultural Promotion of the Mexican Foreign Relations Ministry to present her first show in Mexico, after which she took up permanent residency in that country.

Mr. Tamekane's work at ITXC is a series of images representing the theme of travel. Four works, entitled Baggage I, II, IV, and V, portray shapes of varying values that contain images of earthly or astral landscapes.

Born in Japan, Mr. Tamekane is known for the addition of rich textural qualities to his woodblock images. His medium is described as "woodblock/collagraph."

Mr. Tamekane studied at Sokei Academy of Fine Arts. He is a member of the Japan Print Association. His art is in collections all over the world.

In the exhibition, Mr. Schmeisser — from Canberra, Australia — will show two images from the city of Nara, Japan: Yokushiji Bell and Banner and Horyuji Pagodas. Nara is the sister city of Canberra.

Gallery hours are Monday to Friday, from 9 to 5. For more information about the artists and the exhibit, call The Williams Gallery, at 921-1142, or visit the website, at www.wmgallery.com.

For additional information about ITXC, call 921-1142.

An exhibit of watercolors by Beth Kantor will take place through July 28 in the 1860 House Main Gallery, 124 Montgomery Road, Skillman. Landscape themes — like sunlit seascapes, snowy trails, or western vistas — will dominate the exhibit, reflecting Ms. Kantor's varied interests and subject matter.

Ms. Kantor's work has been published in Watercolor Magazine, Jersey Shore Publications, and On Display. She has a number of awards and has exhibited extensively in both solo and group shows, since earning a B.A. degree in art history from Princeton University in 1998.

She has participated recently in group shows at the Forbes Magazine Galleries, New York, and — in New Jersey — at the Essex Fine Art Gallery and the Polo Gallery.

Gallery hours are Tuesday through Friday, 10 to 3, and Sunday, from 1 to 4. For more information, call 921-3272.

SPORTS

Coach, College Student, and Carpenter; Peter Stanton Is Not Your Average Joe

When the seniors on the Princeton High lacrosse team walked off the field at Delbarton on June 3, after losing 9-4 in the state tournament quarterfinals, there was a sense of grief, an aura of sadness. Not only was their championship run cut short, but their time with one of the area's finest coaches, Peter Stanton, was over.

Stanton has taught his players how to win with class, but he has also taught them how to lose with dignity. He has a great feel for the game, his players, and life itself. He is a deep thinker, relaxed, smiling, enjoying what he does. Besides coaching, he is a carpenter who likes small jobs, remodeling and restoration projects. Music is also his passion, especially music with a purpose, sung by musicians with a philosophical mind.

"I like big, solid, songwriters," he stated, "somebody who can really make you think about something in a different light, something that you've never thought about before." Some of his favorites are Bob Dylan, Neil Young, Richard Thompson and Bruce Coburn.

Grad School in His Future

Stanton is a part-time student at Rutgers University, a Geography major with a 3.85 GPA. He attended Stevens Institute of Technology, an engineering school in Hoboken, but never graduated. After finishing his undergraduate degree at Rutgers, he hopes to move on to graduate school, and then afterwards counsel kids while still coaching.

"When I started back to college, I initially started taking classes that were fun, to give myself the best opportunity to succeed," he explained. "I just started opening catalogs, reading about courses, and just taking the ones that were interesting to me. By some odd fashion I ended up as a Geography major."

Before he was a coach, he was also part of the media, working at an area newspaper until 1992. He was the PHS junior varsity lacrosse coach from 1992-94, took a year off from coaching in 1995, and then returned as head coach of the varsity in 1996.

When he was hired as head coach, there were some questions about his personality. "I remember talking to [Athletic Director] John Curtis about the job," he stated. "He said some people were worried about me being too nice a guy to be an effective coach. I told him, 'I am who I am and I'm not going to change. I have my own ways of motivating people.'"

Two Dismal Seasons

His team suffered through two dismal seasons when he first became head coach, but he always found a way to keep the kids interested in the game, and always measured the glass as being half full instead of half empty.

"I didn't necessarily blame it on the team when we were horrible, so I don't necessarily want to take the credit now."

"Anything that ever went right, we made it a point of really praising [the players]," he said. "I was always so impressed with the kids for having the courage to play through the tough times. I could really emphasize some of the things I believe in, like sportsmanship and character."

"You can award those things and praise those things," he continued. "I think those are the things that turn out to be the foundations for winning. Sometimes the best opportunities to learn how to win, are when you are losing."

"I always made sure that, however the games turned out, we took the right approach, and at the end of the game we'd walk off the field with our heads held high. We managed to do that during those difficult years."

"I used to say, 'It's a lot harder to start where we're at and build a program up than to just walk into one of the great programs. That's an easy job.' Somehow, whatever we took out of that, those were the seeds for winning. I am really thankful to John Curtis for sticking with me through the difficult years, and giving me the opportunity to stay with this group and see it through."

He is also thankful to his assistant, Greg Malla, who is the head coach of the junior varsity lacrosse team, and who also coaches the YMCA seventh and eighth grade lacrosse players. "He stepped in with us this year, while still doing the YMCA," Stanton said. "He's just a great, great teacher."

Players Established Goals

Part of Stanton's formula for success is letting the players know that they matter. In fact, he allowed them to establish their own goals for the 2000 season. Winning the state championship was their main goal.

"I pretty much set one goal for them," he commented, "that we wanted to be better than we were last year. I gave them a list of the things we had accomplished last year. At that point they set their minds on winning a state championship."

"I didn't say, 'You guys are crazy for thinking that's possible,'" he continued. "I said, 'If that's what you want to do, let's give it our best shot.' I just encouraged them to go after what they had set as a goal. The boys made it really clear at the beginning of the season, especially the seniors, that they really wanted to work hard."

Stanton credits the players for being so cooperative, and so focused. "It didn't really take a lot to get the desired results from them," he said. "It wasn't a matter of me doing tricks to get them to work harder than they wanted. It was just a matter of keeping it in focus the game, craving action."

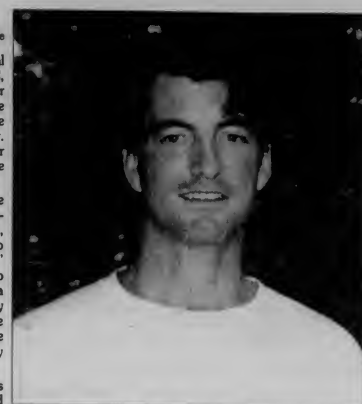

"This is the easiest job I've ever had, coaching these guys," he continued. "They were extremely self motivated. I just remember at the beginning of the season, and so often through the season, when we would be doing a drill, and it would be time to go on to the next one they would say, 'One more coach, two more coach, three more coach.' The kids had such a great feel and understanding of the game that often times I relied on their opinions."

Stanton said the captains of the 2000 team, Eric Kreiger, Brian Lall and Dixon Hayes, were another part of the foundation for a 17-win season. "They were just so smart and dedicated, terrific leaders," he commented. "I used to joke a lot with them, that my job was just to carry out the balls, and pick up all of the stuff they left on the field afterwards."

Team Unity Is Key

There isn't one specific memory of the 2000 season that stands above the rest, according to Stanton. "It's difficult to separate one moment and say, 'Wow! This is great!' I remember things like the bus rides home (when the team chose to stay together). Ordinarily other kids would ride home with their parents instead. The cohesiveness that our team had stands out."

When asked if he would have done anything different during this past season, he replied, "It would have been to have a few more guys get a little more playing time, to have some of the other guys that didn't play a lot get a little bit more involved in game day." He knows from experience how those players feel. Being a reserve player on the Hunterdon Central High School lacrosse team, he knows how it feels to sit, watching

A COACH AND A STUDENT: Princeton High lacrosse coach Peter Stanton guided the Tigers to a 17-1 record this season. He is not only a coach, but a student as well, studying Geography at Rutgers University.

"My junior year we played in the semifinals of the state tournament," he said. "I was a benchwarmer that year, so it wasn't any great thrill for me. I understand how that's a really difficult thing, hanging in there, coming to practice every day, getting yelled at."

"Those are the kinds of things that stand out to me, the unselfish efforts, the willingness of so many players to put the team goals first. They're the ones who ran the wind sprints, they're the ones who spent time on their own learning how to catch and throw, and they're the ones who went to the camps."

"Coaching is just one aspect of the game," he continued. "The most important aspect is the players, and the dedication that they have. It's so common that you hear a coach, when the team is horrible, say, 'I didn't have anything to work with.' The same coach will want to take all the credit in the world when the team is successful."

"I didn't necessarily blame it on the team when we were horrible, so I don't necessarily want to take the credit now. The kids had the character to hang in there during those [tough] years. They're the ones who made it possible to win. They're really the ones who deserve the credit."

He said all of the attention that he receives from the media is slightly embarrassing, but the smile on the players' faces makes coaching more enjoyable. "It's like being blamed for something that's not your fault. I certainly am very proud, and it's nice to be recognized, but more importantly, it's just great to see how happy the kids are. It's awesome when you see a first year kid on the junior varsity team come to life because he just loves playing lacrosse. That's why I do it."

Princeton Post 218 Gains Forfeit Victory Over Schroth's

The Princeton Post 218 baseball team picked up a victory over Schroth's Post 93 in a game that was scheduled to be played on July 1. Schroth's forfeited its second consecutive game against Broad Street Park Post 313 on June 29, therefore its team forfeited the remainder of the season.

Post 218 lost 7-6 to Hightstown Post 148 in a rain-shortened, six-inning game on June 29. Princeton trailed 1-0 after a half inning of play, but rallied for three runs in the bottom of the inning. After surrendering a run in the top of the third, it scored another run in the bottom half of the inning to take a 4-2 lead.

Princeton allowed four unanswered runs in the next two innings, and trailed 6-4 going into the sixth. After giving up another run in the final inning, Princeton rallied for two runs in its last at bat, but it wasn't enough as the team dropped its second straight game.

Catcher Andrew Capriello was 2-for-3, scored once and drove in three RBI's in the loss. Third baseman Jim Hoeland scored two runs and added an RBI, while Nick Walters collected two hits, scored a run, and drove in two RBI's. Righty Joe Tucholski took the loss, as he allowed four hits and six runs in five innings pitched.

June 28 Game
Post 218 starting pitchers collectively issued 12 walks in a 9-2 loss at Hamilton Post 31 on June 28. Princeton's Chris Ordowich allowed eight runs and three hits, and he walked seven batters.

Reliever Mike Miller allowed a run, a hit, and he walked five batters. Mark Henry, Andrew Capriello and Pat Kerlin had one hit apiece in the loss. Capriello drove in a run, and scored a run, while Henry tripled and scored the only other run for Post 218.

In a game that was called because of darkness after six complete innings, Post 218 made the most of its opportunities, rallying in the final frame for an 8-7 victory over North Trenton Post 458. Princeton trailed 7-0 after two innings, but scored five runs in the third, and two runs in the fifth, leading to the score.

Henry, Miller and Tucholski drove in two runs apiece. Henry also scored twice, along with Tucholski and Hoeland, who was 3-for-4. Matt King picked up the win, pitching a complete game, allowing seven runs and nine hits.

June 26 Game
Call it a reversal of fortunes, but Post 218 lost 2-1 to Broad Street Park Post 313 in the final inning on June 26. After winning in the final inning against Mitchell Davis Post 182 and West Windsor Plainsboro on June 23 and June 24 respectively, Princeton found itself on the outside looking in against Post 313.

Hoeland had the only RBI of the game for Princeton, driving in Grayson early in the first inning. Henry, Tucholski and Kerlin all collected one hit each in the loss. Kerlin, who came in to pitch with one out in the fifth, took the loss. He allowed two runs and two hits, but looked impressive in striking out five batters.

Princeton Loses Big In District 12 Tourney

Matt Norcross, Paul Estrada and J.D. Peters collected one hit apiece, but the offense did little else to help, as the Princeton 12-year-old all stars lost 13-0 to Bordentown on July 1. It was the opening of the District 12 Little League Tournament.

Matt Welsh opened the game in strong fashion for Princeton, pitching two solid innings without allowing a run. Something happened in the third inning. The flood gates opened, and Bordentown reigned down hit after hit, in a six-run offensive explosion. To make matters worse, Bordentown scored twice in the fourth inning, and then posted five runs in the fifth inning to take a 13-0 lead. The game was called after Princeton failed to score in the bottom of the fifth.

Welsh pitched four innings, giving up nine hits and allowing 12 runs. He was over-matched by Bordentown pitcher Dan Sasso. The 5'11" giant struck out ten batters, and allowed just one walk. Princeton committed six fielding errors.

Princeton All Stars Dominate Local Tourneys

The Princeton 12-year-old All Stars won three games in a row at the Montgomery Tournament recently, defeating Branchburg 4-1 in extra innings, Hillsborough 11-1, and Montgomery 5-1.

In its game against Branchburg, both teams battled to a running catch in left field to scoreless tie through eight innings before Jon Dinan out the sixth inning to end the field with bases loaded, driving in three runs.

Kyle Rasavich helped the Princeton All Stars demolish Hillsborough in the second pitched four innings, allowing game of the tournament. He struck out five batters in just three innings pitched. Matt Welsh and Sanjiv Sharma light of the game was a home each pitched one inning and run by Rasavich in the fifth fanned two batters apiece. Sharma also helped offensively by doubling twice. Paul Estrada, Hasan Gordon and Adam Spar all collected two singles in the victory.

In the third game of the tournament, Dinan and Matt Norcross started the game off with back to back singles. Estrada then belted a three-run homer to put the Princeton All Stars in front 3-0.

Gordon slapped a single into the outfield in the second inning, stole second, and then came around to score following a base hit by Tyler Mont. Tyler Blumenshine scored in the fifth inning, stealing home, and upping the lead to 5-0. Estrada came on in relief, and struck out the side in the sixth inning for the victory.

Amwell Invitational
In the recently played South County Invitational Tournament in Amwell Valley, the Princeton All Stars defeated Somerset 11-7, 5-4. After surrendering two Amwell Valley 11-1, and Princeton was only able to score once in its final at bat. Robbie Begin led the team, going 3-for-4, and scoring twice. Lauri was 1-for-2, and scored once, while O'Brien was 1-for-3, driving in the team's only two runs.

Princeton opened the tournament with a 15-2 blowout loss to heavily favored Ewing on June 30. The team managed only one hit in a game that was called after five innings because of the ten run rule. Begin scored one of the team's two runs on the afternoon. Lauri scored once, and collected an RBI in the losing cause.

The second game against the Amwell Valley was a laugh for Princeton. Blumenshine one hit and striking out seven batters in just three innings pitched. Matt Welsh and Sanjiv Sharma light of the game was a home each pitched one inning and run by Rasavich in the fifth fanned two batters apiece. Sharma also helped offensively by doubling twice. Paul Estrada, Hasan Gordon and Adam Spar all collected two singles in the victory.

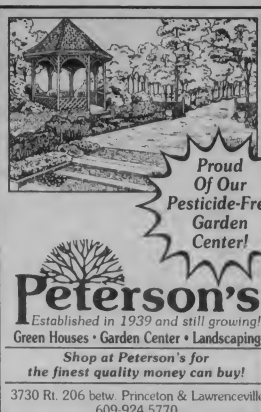

A four-run fourth inning propelled Princeton to a victory over Flemington in the third game of the tournament. Norcross, Estrada, Mont, Blumenshine, Huckel and Tom Frantzen all singled in the inning.

Princeton Cranbury Bows Out of Tourney

Princeton Cranbury had its chances against Lawrence, but was bounced from the Babe Ruth 13-year-old District One double elimination tournament, 7-5 on July 2. Princeton came from behind several times, but wasn't able to control the Lawrence offense.

Princeton trailed in the first inning, and rallied to tie the score. It fell behind 5-1 in the fourth inning, but then put three runs on the board in the fifth, trimming the lead to one. After surrendering two

How can a batter in baseball have 11 pitches thrown to him during one time at bat — with none of them being fouls — AND STILL REMAIN AT BAT? ... Here's the answer to this puzzler ... The batter comes up with 2 out and a man on first, and gets a count of 3 and 2 ... Then the runner at first is picked off, ending that inning ... The same batter would lead off the next inning in what's officially considered the same time at bat, and again runs the count to 3 and 2, then gets ball 4 ... That gives him 11 pitches — with no fouls — in one time at bat.

... It stands in front of the Louisville Slugger Company's headquarters in Louisville, Ky. ... Listing personal property such as furniture, rugs, paintings onto your homeowner's policy for additional coverage is not as expensive as you might think. Please call Jay Bernard to discuss it.

What grandfather hit 19 home runs in major league baseball? ... It was Hall of Famer Stan Musial ... Musial became a grandfather near the end of his 22-year big league career and hit his last 19 homers in 1962 and 1963 as a grandfather.

The biggest baseball bat in the world is 120 feet high and weighs 31 tons

As One of Our Best Institutions, Library Should Stay Where It Is;

To the Editor of Town Topics:

Recently, in Town Topics, we have read many closely-reasoned letters explaining why we should disassemble or relocate the library. The arguments include: High tech forecast — replacement of printed books by electronic books is so imminent that a library may no longer be needed. High tech bugaboo — electromagnetic radiation from the house wiring in the present building endangers the health of library users. Laffy civic duty — turning the building over to a tax-paying business would help to alleviate the Borough's perennial scramble for greater tax revenue. Solution to the parking problem — Moving the library would free up the parking spaces next door now used by library employees. (They don't park there.)

My own contrarian view is that we should keep the library strong and keep it where it is. It is the most efficiently managed of our public services. In Princeton's cluttered center, the library is an island of tranquility, set in an indifferent sea of tombstones, parking lots and traffic congestion. It brings young and old together in a congenial setting and promotes the social cohesion that we are losing elsewhere. This is not a time to nibble away at our best institutions. It is a time, rather, for vision and hope.

Annual Fete Is a Community Builder As Well as a Successful Fund Raiser

To the Editor of Town Topics:

It was a jungle out there and we all had a fabulous time! The 47th Annual June Fete is history and we want to thank everyone in the community who supported this event. Yes, the Fete is a fundraiser. But more importantly, the Fete is a community builder. It is a way to encourage volunteerism and community spirit, and this year we believe it was an incredibly successful event. More than 30 Fete first timers chaired committees. We were able to create partnerships with many new corporate and community groups. For the first time ever, seniors from the Princeton Regional High School spent a service day at the fete fields and helped with all the last minute activities.

Goldman Sachs sent a group of employees to help set up the Fete Auction. On Fete Saturday, representatives from boy scouts, girl scouts, service organizations, nursery school, churches, local restaurants, and local companies manned game and food booths. It was members of the community providing a day of fun for the rest of the community.

Through the hard work of our volunteers and the generosity of the community, the Auxiliary will be able to donate more than $200,000 to the Medical Center at Princeton for their cancer programs. Thank you to each and every one who played a part in making this event such a success. Being a part of the Fete family is a very rewarding experience. Why not try it next year? Call the Auxiliary office at 497-4069 and let us know that you'd like to be a part of Fete 2001.

YOUR SMILE

Patients often have a pure white "Hollywood smile" in mind when considering a cosmetic whitening procedure. The dentist, however, makes aesthetic decisions based on the size of the teeth in relation to those surrounding them, their surface texture, contour, shape, and color. Where color is concerned, people often have the misperception that teeth are all white. In actuality, they are also comprised of yellows, blues, grays, greens, and oranges. Thus, unless a patient has his or her heart set on a career in the movies, lighter teeth that mimic enamel's subtle range of hues would be a better choice than pure white teeth. And, veneering material must be given texture if it is to avoid the look of artificiality.

Can we improve your smile? Today's technology provides a variety of options to address cosmetic concerns. For cosmetic dentistry, utilizing modern and up-to-date procedures, we invite you to call us at 609-924-8300. We are currently accepting new patients and welcome the opportunity to provide you with gentle, professional dental care in a warm and caring environment. We're located at Montgomery Knoll, 192 Tamarack Circle, Skillman, where we stress preventive health care — and we believe good dental health requires constant attention. Our commitment is to relationships of partnership, respect, and appreciation. P.S. Bonding may be utilized to close spaces between teeth, cover stains, and repair chips.

In Library's Present Location It Is Easy To Combine Other Errands with a Visit

To the Editor of Town Topics:

I disagree with the letter printed in TOWN TOPICS on June 28 stating that building a new library at Valley Road is a win-win situation.

One of the things that I really like about living in Princeton is walking to the shops, restaurants and the library. In its present location, it is easy to combine miscellaneous errands with a trip to check out books. That would not be true if the library is moved.

I bring my 5-year-old with me when walking and am not concerned about our safety because of traffic. We enjoy our easy access to the library and hope that it will continue to be available.

Smoking Ban Advocates Are Paternalists With a Hefty Sense of Self Entitlement

To the Editor of Town Topics:

In a letter in your June 28 edition, [TOWN TOPICS June 28] Ingrid Robertshaw defends the recent smoking ban by asserting that she spends time "in California where the entire state has a no-smoke policy" and has "never heard anyone complain about the law." She defends the ban because she is "not willing to sit in restaurants where smokers" make life unpleasant for her, and because smokers remind her of her mother-in-law.

First, I wonder whether Ms. Robertshaw is aware of the fact that the population of California is approximately 33 million. I'm sure that Ms. Robertshaw spends a lot of time in California, but even so, I somehow doubt that she's canvassed the views of a statistically significant fraction of its residents.

Second, if Ms. Robertshaw is genuinely "not willing" to sit next to smokers, I have a piece of advice for her: don't. No one is forcing Ms. Robertshaw to sit anywhere; if she doesn't want to sit next to smokers, she shouldn't patronize restaurants that allow smoking. If Ms. Robertshaw took her own words seriously, she would note that the meaning of the phrase "I am not willing to sit" is "I shall not sit;" — not, "I shall impose my will on others, after choosing to sit."

Finally, I think it's worth reminding Ms. Robertshaw that laws and regulations don't exist to help us repress unpleasant memories about our in-laws. If we enacted laws on this basis, we would quickly destroy whatever remnants of the rule of law we have left in this country.

Laws exist to protect individual rights. In this case, the rights in question are the rights of property and free association. A restaurant owner owns his or her restaurant, and has the right to set the terms of trade there. People are invited to patronize the restaurant on the owner's publicly-advertised terms. They have the right to accept those terms or reject them. If they accept them, they consent to accept the consequences of their decision. If they aren't willing to accept the consequences, they shouldn't accept the terms.

A restaurant owner who puts up a sign that says "No Smoking" has the right to turn smokers away from his or her restaurant — as most do. An owner who puts up a sign that says "Smoking Section Available" (or whatever) is providing notice to anyone who enters that there might be smokers inside. Compulsive smokers should avoid the first kind of restaurant; vehement non-smokers should avoid the second.

What one doesn't have is the right to barge into someone's restaurant, and dictate the terms of trade to owners and consenting customers by force — whether one is the Princeton Regional Health Commission, or just a self-appointed paternalist with a hefty sense of entitlement.

I don't smoke at all or even spend much time eating in any of Princeton's restaurants. But there is a principle here that advocates of the smoking ban have consistently misrepresented and evaded: the principle of rights. Either restaurateurs have rights or they don't. If they do, the ban should be repealed. If they don't, neither do the rest of us. I wonder if the advocates of the ban can overcome their addiction to coercion quickly enough to figure that out.

Princeton Healthcare Center, 419 North Harrison Street.)

Dr. Rothberg's loss will be keenly felt at the hospital, as well, from nursing floor unit secretaries to Medical Center President Dennis Doody.

Daisy Hubbard, unit secretary on the seventh floor of J Building, has known Dr. Rothberg for more than 30 years. When she talks about him, she emphasizes his compassion "with patients and with employees. He is not only a doctor, but also a friend."

Mr. Doody, hospital administrator for 25 years, notes that Dr. Rothberg was instrumental in improving the hospital's cancer care and its medical education program. "He will be very sorely missed."

Dr. Rothberg first came to Princeton 55 years ago — to attend Princeton University, from which he graduated magna cum laude in 1949. He then went on to Harvard Medical School, where he graduated cum laude in 1953.

After completing an internship and residency in medicine at Massachusetts General Hospital, Boston, the young doctor accepted a civilian position as internist in the Walter Reed Army Institute of Research, department of hematology, Washington, D.C. In September 1956, he began two years of service as a Captain in the Medical Corps U.S. Army Reserve, and was assigned to the same department.

The decision to return to Princeton in 1960, to join the Princeton Medical Group, was not difficult, Dr. Rothberg recalled recently. "I was attracted by living in a university town, and by the presence of an excellent, quality medical group," he said, "and I felt at home here."

"When Harvey came on, he was a very keen, bright general internist at the start; and he immediately entered the teaching program," Dr. Wright remembers.

For several years, Dr. Rothberg served as Director of Medical Education at the hospital, and was instrumental in bringing about an affiliation with the Rutgers Medical School, now the Robert Wood Johnson Medical School, part of the University of Medicine and Dentistry of New Jersey.

"When I arrived," he explains, "the Medical Center at Princeton was not exactly sleeping, but it was awakening; it was not simple, but it hadn't realized its full promise and potential. I have seen it develop into a modern medical center."

Over the years, as well, Dr. Rothberg has seen the practice of medicine change. "Despite the onset of computers, new techniques and procedures, one thing must still be kept in mind," he insists. "It is the concept of caring ..."

For years, he said, he anticipated continuing on a part-time basis after retirement. With the advent of managed care, however, he decided against it. The unwritten contract between doctor and patient which used to be at the heart of medical practice has been subverted by insurance companies and HMOs, he says.

"I believe in the idea of progress, but I think the system of delivering medicine is in trouble — and I don't know the solution. Care may be better than it used to be, but it is also more expensive; and managed care has created barriers between doctors and patients. To the extent that access is more difficult, the system is flawed."

First Oncologist

Certified in hematology and internal medicine, Dr. Rothberg became the first cancer specialist in the group, working in what Dr. Wright described as "a very gloomy corner of medicine."

When he began, Dr. Rothberg concedes, "There were many patients and few remedies. It was a challenge to understand cancer and to help people who had cancer." He became a board-certified oncologist in 1973, the first year that exams were given in that specialty.

His interest grew out of hematology

research, he says. "Hematologists used drugs to which other tumors responded. I have seen the field of oncology transformed into one which has brought comfort — and in many cases, cures — to patients. My professional career has, happily, coincided with great changes in the diagnosis, management, and understanding of cancer."

John Baumann, a radiation oncologist, is chief of radiation therapy at the Medical Center. He is a specialist in the treatment of cancer by radiation, while Dr. Rothberg's focus in treatment is chemotherapy. Frequently, Dr. Baumann sees patients who have been referred by Dr. Rothberg.

"It is always a pleasure and a privilege," he told TOWN TOPICS. "His patients are always so well cared for. All the necessary tests have been done; and there are certain things you just won't have to worry about."

Personal Responsibility

Dr. Rothberg is a physician who "really and truly cares about his patients." Dr. Baumann pointed out, "and that is the foundation from which everything else flows. He was trained and steeped in some of the finest institutions in American medicine, where doctors learn to do things right. He always takes personal responsibility for his patients. The Medical Center is losing a great one."

"His patients all love him," noted Don Denry, a radiologist with the Princeton Radiology Associates. "He is a very people-oriented physician. If he orders a chest X-ray, for example, he always comes by to read it himself. Not all doctors do that."

In his meticulous attention to detail and his insistence that everything be done exactly right, Dr. Rothberg doesn't let any member of his medical team — intern, resident, nurse — off the hook. "He is a brilliant man with a wonderful sense of humor, who wants the team with him at all times," commented Mary Kennedy, the head nurse on J-7. She has known Dr. Rothberg since she came to the Medical Center 21 years ago.

"When Dr. Rothberg comes to the floor, he expects you to drop everything and participate with him. In reality, he is a gentle, kind person, but you have to be prepared for his comments."

New nurses, Ms. Kennedy said, are sometimes scared of Dr. Rothberg. "They're afraid to say anything at first; but the young nurses, medical students, interns and residents will have lost something by not knowing him."

Donna Baumann was both a patient of Dr. Rothberg's and his office nurse for eight years. It was Dr. Rothberg, in fact, who encouraged her to go into nursing, despite some serious health problems.

Now a nurse with Presbyterian Homes of New Jersey, Ms. Baumann declares of Dr. Rothberg, "He is the most conscientious doctor I've ever known. He was not one to shoot the breeze," she adds, "and sometimes he

Susan Solomon

Susan Solomon, Hardy Drive, is the author of a new book entitled Louis I. Kahn's Trenton Jewish Community Center, published by Princeton Architectural Press, New York. It includes 70 black-and-white photographs, and is available in paperback for $19.95.

Dr. Solomon, an independent curator, received her Ph.D. from the University of Pennsylvania in 1997. The book was adapted from her dissertation, Secular and Spiritual Humanism: Louis I. Kahn's Work for the Jewish Community in the 1950s and 1960s.

The book is the sixth title in the Building Studies series that offers an in-depth analysis of a single structure through original documents, drawings, and critical examinations of the design process. It is the first monograph to fully explore Louis I. Kahn's built and unbuilt Trenton plans, the project that launched the renowned architect's mature career.

Princeton resident Mary Ellen Schott is the new librarian at the Christian Science Reading Room, 178 Nassau Street. She oversees the work of a large staff of volunteers, and is also a Christian Science nurse.

Ms. Schott moved to the area six years ago from Chatham. A graduate of Virginia Tech, she has a background in corporate interior design and has worked as a lighting design consultant. She has recently designed window displays for the Reading Room.

came off as abrupt, but his heart was always in the right place. I was always very proud to say I worked for Dr. Rothberg."

Mr. Doody noted that Dr. Rothberg was a "champion of the nursing group. He was always an advocate for the registered nurses as major care givers, and worked to strengthen their role."

As president of the medical and dental staff at the hospital, he was an ex officio voting member of the board of trustees and helped set policy for the entire institution, Mr. Doody explained.

The hospital administrator also remarked that Dr. Rothberg is considered the "unofficial historian" of the Medical Center. He is the author of two histories of the institution — The First Fifty Years, published in 1969, and its sequel, The First Seventy-Five Years.

End-of-Life Issues

One of Dr. Rothberg's "wonderful points," according to Ms. Kennedy, the head nurse, is his ability to talk with patients and their families about end-of-life issues and to help them realize the risks and benefits of technology.

He is a long-time member of the Medical Center's Biomedical Ethics Committee. About 10 years ago, he helped write the hospital's version of a Living Will, condensing the state's 12-page version to three pages.

The physician, he explains, must know when treatment will no longer truly benefit a patient. "I am impressed by the limitations of medical intervention," he says, pointing out that chemotherapy may not help a patient after a certain point, and that prolonging life with the use of a feeding tube may not be desirable if the patient has poor quality of life.

The physician needs to seek input from family members and from the patient — if he or she is capable, Dr. Rothberg says. "The doctor should try to give guidance without excessive paternalism."

"Medicine has become more complicated," he reflects. "Technologies have been developed that were unavailable when I started; and the future of medicine is exciting, especially when you contemplate gene therapy, new diagnostic techniques, and new modes of therapy — but unsolved problems remain all over the world."

"In the U.S., we will have to figure out how to modify the system, so that costs can be kept reasonable, without creating barriers to access, and interference between doctor and patient."

Dr. Rothberg plans to continue some of his medical involvement. In retirement, he will maintain an active teaching schedule at UMDNJ-Robert Wood Johnson School of Medicine, where he is clinical professor of medicine. He also plans to continue his participation on the Tumor Board and the Biomedical Ethics Committee; and he will be available for consultations.

He will also, however, have time to pursue his interest in art and art history; and, in September, he will start work as a volunteer docent at the Princeton University Art Museum. In his letter to patients, he also noted that he looks forward to having more time for travel, gardening, golf, and family.

"He is one of the greatest physicians I've ever had the privilege of working with," said Dr. Ben Wright, one of the nine doctors who welcomed Dr. Rothberg to the Princeton Medical Group.

Family includes his wife, Nancy, and his three daughters — of whom he is very proud. Elizabeth teaches in the New York City public schools; Marjorie is an architect in Wilmington, Del.; and daughter Nancy works with an Internet firm in New York.

"There have been many satisfactions in being a doctor in Princeton," Dr. Rothberg reflects. "For years I have had the unique opportunity of being helpful to many wonderful and interesting patients. I am fortunate in having selected the right profession and the right place in which to practice it."

EINSTEIN TIMES TWO: Walter Matthau, who died Saturday at 79, was remembered warmly by Harriet Drive resident Bob Hearn (you guessed, on the right) a computer software designer who spent three months working as the actor's double during the Princeton shooting of "I.Q." Walter Matthau played Einstein in the 1994 film. Mr. Hearn remembered the actor as "a very positive person, a very nice person, who at break time would be out with the crowd shaking hands and, truly, kissing babies."

REAL ESTATE AND YOU
By Tod Peyton

GET RICH QUICK WITH INVESTMENT REAL ESTATE

You see them on cable TV, sitting around a swimming pool, sharing stories about how they got rich quick by buying valuable real estate for give-away prices. They took a course on how to invest in real estate and become millionaires overnight — with nothing down and no credit hassles from mortgage lenders. The course worked for them, and they say it will work for you, too.

If all this sounds too good to be true — it is! These "get-rich-quick" courses and schemes are being investigated by consumer fraud agencies around the country. This does not mean that you can't become a millionaire by investing in real estate. But investing in real estate requires one important thing from you — an investment of cash. You can't build an empire overnight, but you can do very well over the long term by selecting property in a good location that is priced well, and which can provide a reasonable cash flow.

For dependable, individual advice on buying or selling real estate, call Tod Peyton, Realtor or any Peyton Associate at 921-1550. Feel free to stop by my office at 343 Nassau Street in Princeton.
